

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But they are clearly abusing their position by running this documentary right before the election. It should be obvious to anyone that the only reason for doing this is to attempt to prevent John Kerry's election as President of the United States. That is just plain wrong. The media has a responsibility to be honest and ethical. Sinclair is trying to influence an election to further their own interest and that isn't honest or ethical. If this anti-Kerry propaganda is allowed to air the FCC will lose what credibility it has left. I am pleading with you as a deeply distressed citizen to do the right thing just once.
